INTA 6302. GRADUATE SEMINAR: INTERNATIONAL POLITICAL ECONOMY

Instructor: Professor Fei-Ling Wang
Time: Tuesdays 18:05-20:55
Office Hours: TTH 12:00-13:15 and Tuesdays 15:15-17:30 or by Appointment
Office: 214 Habersham House (404-894-1904); E-mail: fw@gatech.edu

The Course:

As a core course of the Nunn School's Graduate Program, this seminar examines some of the basic approaches to the study of International Political Economy (IPE). We will explore the major theories, key concepts and important policy issues in the field of IPE through a reading and discussions of the literature on the state and market, trade and foreign direct investment, collective action, hegemonic stability, economic growth, North-South relations, dependency, technology transfer, globalization and regionalization, international financial market, international terrorism, and environmental issues.

The seminar is a combination of informal lectures and discussions. The students are required to report on the readings and participate in classroom discussions. The assigned readings are expected to be finished before classes. Each student will give an oral presentation of professional quality on a major issue in international political economy. Each student is expected to develop and demonstrate the ability to describe the social, political, and economic forces that influence social and nations’ behaviors and the global system.

Weekly Reading Reports: Every student is required to write a short (one page, single space) reading report about assigned weekly readings every week. The weekly report should be ready for submission at the beginning of that week’s class (in hard copy and electronic version with the subject line of “Week XX Reading Report from XXX”). The reports should be brief summaries of the reading materials.

Critique Essay and Presentation: Each student is required to write a critique essay (not to exceed four pages, single space, or six pages, double space) and orally present it (for no longer than 30 minutes including Q&A) to the class on one of the weekly readings, to be selected and approved by the instructor at our first meeting of the class. The hardcopy of the essay is due at the time of presentation (also submit it electronically with the subject line of “Critique Essay from XXX”). Each essay should critically examine the readings, outlining the main strengths and weaknesses, offering a brief assessment or critique and raising questions for the class to discuss. No outside reading or research is needed but the student is expected to make comments on the reading while utilizing his/her overall knowledge about the subject.

As a major learning outcome, the course will assess the student’s effective communication skills, the ability of being able to express their arguments clearly and effectively both in written reports and in their research and oral presentations.

Research Paper: every student is required to write a research paper addressing one theoretical or practical IPE issue. Sample issues include: exploration and protection of the high sea, international financial system, international migration and refugees, international regimes, the fate of socialism, and the issue of international terrorism. Your paper topic must be submitted with a brief justification to the instructor by Week 4. You are also required to submit your research design and a detailed outline of your paper (maximum 2 pages single space) by Week 7. The completed paper is due on the last meeting of our class. It should have 18-20 double-spaced pages, excluding bibliography and cover page. Each student is required to submit a hardcopy and an electronic copy of the paper.

Participation/Attendance is the instructor portion of your grade. It will be based on the quality and the quantity of your participation in class discussions. All views are welcome and those who participate actively will be rewarded accordingly. We all learn from each other's insights.

GT Honor Code

This class strictly observes the Georgia Tech Honor Code and does not tolerate any form of plagiarism, defined as “to steal and pass off the ideas or words of another’s as one's own or use another's production without crediting the source.” For questions involving these or any other Academic Honor Code issues, please consult me or visit www.honor.gatech.edu/plugins/content/index.php?id=9.
